Trustee Gutman reported there are no action items from the Audit Committee. The Audit Committee discussed the following issues: reports to the confidential hotline, an update on pending litigation, a cybersecurity report, and the exit conference related to the federal compliance audits that took place in December. They reviewed the audit schedule for 2019-20 and the three-year audit plan and internal audit reports that had been issued since the last meeting.

Item 2  Chairman Anker called upon Trustee Michael Dora for a report from the Academics & Student Experience Committee. Trustee Dora reported there are no action items for approval.

Dr. Emily Bobo, Professor of English at Bloomington is the outgoing chair of faculty council. She shared the work of the Academic Freedom Taskforce, change in reporting of hours for faculty, and the beginning of an academic due process task force that will review policies that will allow for the protection of academic freedom. Ms. Jennifer Schaeffer, the current chair of the faculty council, reported on the children in the classroom policy, input for the Single Mom’s initiative and the work of faculty council in supporting major college initiatives including 8 week classes, IvyOnline, and Inclusive Tuition. Dr. Monroe and Dr. Ellsperman recognized Dr. Bobo as the outgoing chair of faculty council.

Kathryn Stremiecki spoke about Ivy Assist, a social services web platform powered by the company Aunt Bertha. Students use Ivy Assist to search for agencies and services in their local area. These services include, but are not limited to, food, housing, transportation, and financial assistance. Stremiecki demonstrated the student’s experience as they use the platform. Since the launch of the Ivy Assist website last June, over 15,000 unique Ivy Tech users have logged onto the site. Over 40% of the searches have taken place outside of business hours. The most common search terms are food pantry, help pay for gas, and help find housing.

Additionally, Stremiecki and Dominick Chase provided an overview of the Uber Pilot. This pilot has been launched to assist students who are experiencing a transportation barrier. Students needing transportation assistance work with Ivy Cares staff to set up an Ivy Tech Uber account that will offset the cost of an Uber ride to campus, or pay for the ride in its entirety. Students who use the service will be tracked to compare their completion rate to the general completion rate.
Matthew Pittman provided an update on IvyOnline. This fall IvyOnline ran 421 sections which was an increase of four more sections as compared to Fall 2018. However, while that was a small increase in the number of sections, IvyOnline also served more than 1,000 additional students this fall over last. While a few additional sections ran, those sections were at higher enrollment (closer to the cap). The average section size in IvyOnline was between 2 and 3 students higher this fall than the same courses last fall. In terms of outcomes, the data follows much of the same trends as we saw with other courses. First 8-week courses have the highest success rate followed by 16 week and 2nd 8-week courses. A couple highlights were BIOL 101, which saw an enrollment increase this fall of 39%, success rates improved 4.2%, and withdrawal rate dropped by 1.1%. INFM 109 was another course that had significant improvements including a success rate bump of 4.8% and a decrease in withdrawal rate by 2.7%. IvyOnline will continue to work with faculty and curriculum committees to ensure that each course has positive outcomes for our students while maintaining academic rigor.

Within IvyOnline, Faculty Leads serve as the academic lead for online course offerings, and this involves providing opportunities for faculty growth in the online environment. Examples of such opportunities include piloting new technology, such as the Perceivant dashboard and Packback discussion board platform. Faculty leads also leverage the new structure of IvyOnline to build community so faculty can connect as online faculty members across campuses. To gauge faculty buy-in, the Faculty Leads surveyed current IvyOnline instructors. After the initial semester of IvyOnline, the results from current IvyOnline faculty were positive and supportive of IvyOnline’s direction so far.

Drs. Stacy Atkinson and Cory Clasemann-Ryan provided an update on the College’s 8-week course initiative. In Fall 2019, the College offered more than half of its courses in an 8-week format, with students having a higher passing rate in these courses than in 16-week courses. Ivy Tech continues to utilize 8-week champions and mini-grants to support this initiative.

Mary Anne Sloan provided a programmatic overview of the Nursing program. Current and projected nursing demand in the state were reviewed. An overview of the various nursing programs was provided with respective enrollment, graduation rates and NCLEX pass rates for the past 3 years, all having increased year over year. Proposed programs were highlighted. Ms. Sloan highlighted the regulatory consideration and market challenges that are present in Indiana and may influence nursing enrollment. Several possible initiatives were discussed that could allow for increased nursing enrollment as well as improved student success. Ms. Sloan reviewed the current nursing program fees and nursing faculty salaries and proposed a possible solution to increasing nursing faculty statewide.

The Marketing and Public Relations report provided the Board an update on the total number of applications the College has received this year and that number has now exceeded 78,000. Marketing efforts and campus recruitment teams drive those numbers. The College is pushing March start classes via marketing and earned media more than ever before. The digital marketing efforts continue and are performing well. In order to build more awareness that a student can start classes at Ivy Tech in March, radio and outdoor has been purchased throughout the state. A number of new digital campaigns to push for March classes are being rolled out on a weekly basis statewide and the team continues to monitor the success of those campaigns and shift dollars and invest additional dollars with those campaigns that are working. He heard about how the College expanded its partnership with the Indiana Latino Institute as efforts continue to focus on better targeted efforts and to maximize long-standing relationships. We also learned the College generated over $4.5 million dollars in earned media in 2019 and is off to a great start in 2020 have already $1 million in earned media. And finally, we got an update on the important brand research project being managed by the marketing team and we look forward to that research helping answer questions about the College’s name, its perception and what messaging resonates with various audiences.

D. TREASURER’S REPORT:

Matt Hawkins noted the reserve is trending about $4M above budget, primarily due to investment income. They are working closely with investment advisors, monitoring effects of coronavirus on the fixed income market and our portfolio. The colleges expenses are trending $11M below budget.
