Creating Your Elevator Pitch
The elevator pitch is a key component in your successful building of your personal brand and professional network. When you finally have the opportunity to express what makes you unique, it is imperative that you take advantage of the situation. This short, thirty second to two minute speech holds all of the information that you believe is crucial in order for others gain an understanding of who you are and what you're capable of.

General Guidelines for Your Elevator Pitch:

Step 1: Begin with what you do. (Don’t overcomplicate with industry jargon. Keep it simple – no need for your life story either).

Step 2: Add a statement about how/why you excel in this role. What is your greatest strength in this area? What type of problems do you solve? (“I do Y” – what do you help people or businesses do? Got some kudos to share? Don’t be shy!)

Step 3: Add what you would like to do (you goal). (“I am looking to be introduced to A” – be specific! If you ask for something non-specific you are likely to get it. Tell them how they can help you.)

Step 4: Throw in something memorable.
