Student Financial Aid at a glance

What is federal student aid?

Federal student aid comes from the federal government—specifically, the U.S. Department of Education. It's money that helps a student pay for higher education expenses (i.e., college, career school, or graduate school expenses). Federal student aid covers such expenses as tuition and fees, room and board, books and supplies, and transportation. There are three main categories of federal student aid: grants, work-study, and loans.

Who gets federal student aid?

Students who meet certain eligibility requirements may receive some type of financial aid. Some of the most basic eligibility requirements are that you must:

- demonstrate financial need (for most programs);
- be a U.S. citizen or an eligible noncitizen;
- have a valid Social Security number;
- be enrolled or accepted for enrollment as a regular student in an eligible degree or certificate program;
- maintain satisfactory academic progress in college or career school;
- sign the certification statement on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA®) form stating that
 - you are not in default on a federal student loan,
 - you do not owe money on a federal student grant, and
 - you will use federal student aid only for educational purposes; and
- show you're qualified to obtain a college or career school education by
 - having a high school diploma or a recognized equivalent such as a General Educational Development (GED) certificate;
 - completing a high school education in a homeschool setting approved under state law (or—if state law does not require a homeschooled student to obtain a completion credential—completing a high school education in a homeschool setting that qualifies as an exemption from compulsory attendance requirements under state law); or
 - enrolling in an eligible career pathway program and meeting one of the "ability-to-benefit" alternatives described below.

How do I apply for federal student aid?

1. Create an FSA ID.

Students, parents, and borrowers should create an FSA ID, made up of a username and password, to submit their Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) online and to access U.S. Department of Education websites. Your FSA ID is used to confirm your identity and electronically sign your federal student aid documents. To create an FSA ID, visit StudentAid.gov/fsaid.

2. Complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at StudentAid.gov.

If you plan to attend college from July 1, 2023 – June 30, 2024, you'll be able to submit a 2023–24 FAFSA beginning on Oct. 1, 2022. You'll be required to report income and tax information from 2021. FAFSA information is also used to award state and institutional financial aid. Be sure to file your FAFSA by April 15, 2023 for state grant consideration and use School Code 009917. Ivy Tech Community College's priority dates are listed at ivytech.edu/financial-aid.

3. Review your Student Aid Report.

After you apply, you'll receive a Student Aid Report, or SAR. Your SAR contains the information reported on your FAFSA and usually includes your Expected Family Contribution (EFC). The EFC is a number (not a dollar amount) used to determine your eligibility for federal student aid. Review your SAR information to make sure it's correct. The school(s) you list on your FAFSA will get your SAR data electronically.

4. Apply for Ivy Tech Scholarships!

To apply for scholarships, log into MyIvy, click on the Tools and Resources tab, and click the Apply for Scholarships link. You only need to complete one application each academic year to be eligible for most Ivy Tech scholarships.

5. Estimate your cost and aid!

If you want to see an estimate of your direct costs and financial aid after submitting your FAFSA, visit ivytech.edu/financial-aid and click on "Calculate your estimated cost of attendance, grants, and loans" from the "Helpful Tools" box on the right hand side of the screen.
